This Saturday night FM presents a bluesman Arbee made last spring, recently took up residence in Cleveland, and has been involved in playing blues since the 1940s. In the forties he was a friend of Bill Broonzy, Tampa Bay's Memphis Slim, and others. Many of these were involved in recordings for RCA. His blues hit of "Heart Belongs to You" featured Arbee's guitar; Bob Calhoun, Ranson Knowling, and Judge Riley, drums.

Arbee Stidham was born in Arkansas and later moved to Memphis. He arrived in Chicago in the thirties, through Lester May. At RCA, he began recording.

By JIM HORN

This is an excerpt from an interview of Bob Dylan at his farmhouse near Woodstock, New York, conducted in July of this year:

Interviewer: "So your music began after John Wesley

Dylan: "I don't know if it's vital, but I started playing a lot more."

Interviewer: "What was your relationship between your early music and your more recent music, comparing, say, 'The Row' with 'Nashville Rag' or that fast thing on your new album?"

Dylan: "I'll tell you what I know. Mostly I try not to think about things like that. I have a couple of my old records around here some on the shelves there, I

Interviewer: "You have shelves yourself?"

Dylan: "A while ago I bored and decided
